

Properly equipped?

As the credit crunch continues to bite, more and more employers and managed service providers are looking for meaner and leaner ways of operating. But when it comes to managing their temporary workforce, many are simply not properly equipped.

We all recognise the need to stay on top of things during a recession is essential, but do you really know how many temporary workers are in your business at any one time? How much they are costing you? For how long have they been engaged? What is the average cost per hire? And, which supplier agency is delivering most effectively?

If you don't, it's time you took a look at Skillstream...

An easy to use, intuitive and future proof contingent workforce management system, Skillstream eliminates a lot of the problems associated with the hiring, managing and invoicing of contractors and temporary staff. Quite simply, Skillstream can provide incisive management information at the click of a button - information that will give you a clear and immediate picture of your temporary workforce locally, nationally and globally.

What's more, because it's a non-legacy, web based software platform, tailored and branded to your organisation's needs, it's incredibly versatile. No more confusion about how much you're spending, no more time-consuming administration, tedious paperwork and confusing spreadsheets, just informed decisions, streamlined processes and, above all, sizeable savings.

It's time to get properly equipped.

For more information about the system's benefits, features and usability, visit www.skillstream.co.uk, or contact one of the team on 020 7401 9090 for an informed discussion.
